

A photograph of a gorilla in a lush green forest. The gorilla is the central focus, looking slightly to the right. The background is filled with tall grasses and other green foliage, creating a dense, natural setting. The lighting is bright, suggesting a sunny day.

The African Experience

Linking Tourism & Conservation

Presentation by Gregory Bakunzi

The Kahuzi Biega Park conserves the Grauer's Gorillas, the world largest Gorilla Species.

Tourists provide support to safeguarding the future of the park, thus making the people in the surrounding local communities realize how they benefit from the management of the park and they develop a positive attitude and contribute themselves actively to the management or strive live in harmony with nature.

Tourism supporting conservation

- Creation of new and sustainable employments
- Community will improve quality of life through significantly increased access to drinking water, education, and health services
- The park's ecosystems and wildlife populations protected and flourishing
- Kahuzi Biega will be one of the world's greatest travel destinations

Conclusion

The Kahuzi Biega example may play a role in promoting conservation, tourism and uplifting the welfare of the community around the park. We should learn from each other and implement what has proven to work best. The cooperation with various conservation institutions and tour operators globally will develop profile as a leading example in the world.

For more information, please visit us at:

- What is RedRocks Initiative?
- www.RedRocksRwanda.com
- <http://www.redrocksinitiative.org/>